Bowler pleads guilty to federal count

By Mike Myers

GRANITE CITY — School Board Vice President Paul Ray Bowler pleaded guilty Thursday to one count of making a false statement on a loan application.

Bowler entered the plea to the felony count in the federal court in East St. Louis.

He had originally been charged with four counts of making a false statement. The other counts were dropped. Sentencing is expected in May.

"I'm really embarrassed," Bowler said Monday. "I never thought I had done anything wrong."

"But after my attorney and I met with the U.S. attorney and the FBI and they showed us what law had been broken, and explained that ignorance of the law is no excuse, I realized a law had been broken and decided to plead guilty."

Bowler said the charge grew out of a loan he applied for in 1984 to purchase six four-unit apartments.

"It was getting time for closing and I was told by the real estate agents that I had to show $50,000 in my bank account," Bowler said. "I told them I didn't have the money, so I couldn't get the loan."

"They asked if I could borrow the money, that it didn't really matter, (saying) that I just had to put it in the bank until the account was checked and then give the money back."

"They said it's done all the time. The example they gave me was if someone had made the deposit and down-payment and had listed $5,000 in their account. "Then that money was used to buy furniture or stuff for the house. Then they borrow from a friend or family and, after the check, give the money back."

"Later, I went back and told them I couldn't get it all and I was told it was not a problem."

"We'll loan you the rest and you can give it back after they verify the account." That's what we did."

"I always assumed it was legal, I was assured it was legal and done all the time. "I voluntarily told all this to the FBI when I was questioned about two years ago. What happened was I was still thinking what I did wasn't wrong."

Bowler said he didn't intentionally lie to anyone or try to hide anything from anyone.

Paul Ray Bowler

"I always assumed it was legal. I was assured it was legal and done all the time. I voluntarily told all this to the FBI when I was questioned about two years ago. What happened was I was still thinking what I did wasn't wrong."

"You've got to remember the time. Every night on TV there were ads for 'Buy now with no money down.' I'm embarrassed because I trusted an 'expert' and was told wrong, which caused me to do something illegal, something I could be prosecuted for," Bowler said.

"If I can help anyone by my experience, I've got to say if someone doesn't have the money for a down payment or in their account and a realtor suggests they borrow it from a family member or friend to show that it's there and then, after the check, give it back, then they'll be breaking the same law I did."

"I would advise them to contact the U.S. Attorney or the FBI immediately."

Bowler said the guilty plea would not affect his future on the school board or as a candidate for city treasurer.

"I have been informed by my attorney that this plea does not constitute grounds for my removal from the school board or from seeking the position of treasurer."

"What does this prove? Well, I trusted the advice of a single so-called expert and I got burned."

"I'm not naive. I wasn't sure about securing the loan so I did what any intelligent person would do. I sought expert advice."

"Next time I need advice I won't settle for just one source of information. That can only make me a better person and city treasurer."

"I am hurt by this. My opponents will likely attack my character. But this isn't a matter of character, it's a matter of misplaced trust. I trusted people and signed those papers and that was a mistake."

"But it won't knock me out of contention because people in Granite City know me. They know they can trust me and they know I'm the most qualified person seeking the office."

"I want to reaffirm that this personal setback will in no way lessen my determination to be the best treasurer Granite City ever had."

School Board President Jolene Terrell said the board has never discussed Bowler's indictments or possible actions it might take if Bowler were proven guilty.

"I personally figured a person was innocent until proven guilty, so it never came up," Terrell said. "I don't know what the law says. I know that certain things automatically remove a person from the board, but I don't know what the law says about what specific things."

"I know we will do what the law says to do."

Terrell said she was "pretty certain" the topic would be discussed at last night's (Tuesday's) board meeting.

Bill Schooley, attorney for the school board, said he would have to look at the plea and offense before giving any kind of opinion.

"I've gathered up the laws in case this came up," Schooley said.

"I'll take them to the meeting tonight (Tuesday). If it is an infamous crime there is automatic dismissal, but I'll have to look at everything before I give the board my opinion."

Poplar Street Bridge work begins new chapter in book of area bridge repair

EXTENSIVE REPAIRS planned for the Poplar Street Bridge are discussed Thursday by Dale Klohr, District 8 engineer for the Illinois Department of Transportation.

By Dennis Grubbaugh
Managing editor

GRANITE CITY — According to Dale Klohr, $7 million worth of work is needed to fix the ill of two local bridges.

That's the price tag placed on all construction that has or will be done on repairs to the Martin Luther King and Poplar Street bridges. The work, begun last spring, reaches a crucial stage in March when three years of construction rehabilitation begins on Poplar.

The repairs, which most people feel are desperately needed, are only part of the story, said Klohr, the District 8 engineer for the Illinois Department of Transportation.

Years of planning preceded the work. Agreements had to be reached with several communities, including Granite City, Venice, Madison and East St. Louis; with the State of Missouri and City of St. Louis; and with transit districts in Madison and St. Clair counties, among others.

The biggest hurdle was in getting East St. Louis and bondholders to relinquish ownership of the King Bridge to joint supervision by the Illinois and Missouri departments of transportation.

Toll revenue from the city-built King Bridge had fallen below the amount needed to keep it in good condition and to retire its bond debt, and the structure was literally falling apart.

With state ownership, funding for major improvements became available.

The King repairs would have been finished a few months ago had the first round of repair bids not been rejected as too high in December 1987, Klohr said. That rejection postponed the work until lower bids were accepted a few months later.

Once the deck finally did come off the King Bridge, the state found what it had always feared — substantial damage to the bed. "Some of the steel had holes in it that big around," said Klohr, using his fingers to form a large "O."

Knowing what had to be done, financing it and getting it finished were three different things, Klohr said, and there were a number of "brainstorming" sessions that came first. One of those resulted in the idea of making the Eads Bridge one way during rush hours, to relieve traffic crunch.

"That idea has worked very well," Klohr said. "We've increased vehicles per day from 3,000 to 6,000 during rush periods."

Eads traffic flow is one way both going into Missouri in the mornings and coming out of Missouri at night. Between rush hours the lanes are converted back to two-way, Klohr said.

During game one lane is reserved for use as a High Occupancy Vehicle lane, meaning it is for use only by cars with three or more passengers. Those cars seldom have delays "since they can zip right across," Klohr said. That efficiency is "the carrot" for convincing drivers to participate in car pooling, he said.

Other bridges have been affected to a lesser degree, traffic wise, although all of them are being inspected regularly for stress, he said.

There is also an agreement with local communities for repairs needed to any arterial

Meeting set Feb. 27 on widening Nameoki Road

GRANITE CITY — The Illinois Department of Transportation on Feb. 27 will hold a public meeting on widening Nameoki Road.

The meeting will be held at the Illinois Employment Service, No. 5 American Shopping Center on Pehling Road in Granite City.

The meeting is being held to discuss the improvement of Illinois Route 203 (Nameoki Road) between Madison Avenue and Pontoon Road in Granite City.

The improvement will consist of widening the existing four-lane pavement and removing the raised median, except at Pontoon Road, Madison Avenue, and

Curb and gutter, storm-sewer, and sidewalk reconstruction will be included where necessary. The existing traffic signals along Nameoki Road will be upgraded as part of this project.

The project needs an additional 10-foot-wide strip of right-of-way along the west side between Richmond Avenue and Amos Avenue, an IDOT official said.

At the shopping center entrances at Lindell Boulevard and Amos Avenue, on the west

Battle of leaks continues in Venice

While still experiencing problems with a leaky roof, eyes have temporarily shifted from ceiling to floor at Venice Lincoln Technical Center, where a steam leak is shutting down the boiler every four to six hours. Tests were to be conducted to determine if a portion of the gymnasium floor should be torn up to gain access to the pipes.

New county building to be topic

Madison County Board members will meet March 8 to determine if the simultaneous $20 million renovation of the County Courthouse and construction of a new administration building could be accomplished without a bond issue. Chairman Nelson Hagnauer called the meeting the finance and building committees were unable to reach an agreement on a work timetable.

Woman critical after shooting

GRANITE CITY — A Granite City area woman shot twice in the chest about 6 p.m. Monday was in critical but stable condition Tuesday morning at St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

Barbara (Nelson) Pallagi, 32, of the 2400 block of Angela Drive, Nameoki Township, was shot twice in the chest at her home.

She was taken by Campbell Ambulance to SEMC, where she underwent surgery.

The wounds were caused by a .38-caliber revolver, according to a detective with the Madison County Sheriff's Office.

"It's still not clear what happened, but it doesn't look at this time as if foul play was involved," said Det. Sgt. Steve Nomm.

"We haven't talked with her yet," he said. Nomm indicated the shooting could have been accidental.

Cooperative effort ends in arrest of burglary suspects

VENICE — Cooperation between two police departments plus the action of an alert citizen resulted in the arrest of four burglary suspects Feb. 14.

Felony warrants against all four Venice men were issued by the Madison County State's Attorney's Office.

The warrants charged Gordon D. Caldwell, 21, of the 1200 block of Kolb Street, Darron Lott, 18, of the 800 block of Main Street, and Tyrone Treadway Jr., 19, of the 1300 block of Oriole Street with residential burglary.

The fourth warrant charged James A. Treadway, 20, of the 600 block of Lincoln Avenue with burglary.

Madison Patrolman Steven Shelby — who was curious about a pickup truck in the 1500 block of Collinsville Avenue at 12:40 a.m. Feb. 12 started the series of events leading up to the arrests.

After Shelby saw the truck pull to the side of the road it appeared no one was inside the cab, he said. He directed a spotlight onto the vehicle and two heads popped up, the officer reported.

Gordon Caldwell, the driver, said the truck wouldn't start and he was waiting for someone to help start it, a report said. A passenger in the truck was James Treadway.

Shelby saw a blanket and some items in the truck and was told the property belonged to a relative of one of the men, he said.

In the truck bed were a video cassette recorder, a color television and a microwave oven, it was alleged.

The Madison officer checked with his own department and Venice police and was told by Venetian Patrolman Neal Mize that two burglaries had occurred a short time earlier and the items described possible of the burglaries.

Caldwell and James Treadway were taken to the Madison police station and held for investigation. Venice police called Madison at 1:35 a.m. and said one of the burglary victims had identified the items in the truck as her property.

Treadway and Caldwell were then transferred to Venice custody.

Venice police first were alerted when a resident went to the police station at 11:55 p.m. Feb. 13 and reported hearing an audible alarm at the home of Betty Thomas in the 1200 block of Klein Street.

Police investigated and saw a window open on the back porch. The area was searched but no one was found.

Thomas, who was not at home, was contacted. She and Mize went to the house and discovered a color television and VCR were missing, plus a microwave oven, a remote telephone and a cassette tape recorder.

The microwave, television and VCR were recovered. Venice Patrolman Oliver Mason and an Illinois State Police trooper served the arrest warrant on Tyrone Treadway Jr. at his home at 11:35 p.m. Feb. 14. Lott was arrested at 6:30 a.m. Feb. 14.

Both Treadways were transferred Thursday to the Madison County Jail in Edwardsville. Caldwell and Lott also were transferred to the county jail.

A silver 9mm semi-automatic pistol allegedly was under the car seat and Sloan had a clip containing eight live rounds for the weapon in his pocket, police said. He posted $102 bail and was released pending a March 10 court appearance in Granite City.

across Broadway from Klein Street to South 4th Street when her car was struck by an eastbound auto operated by Steven M. Haag, 28, of Belleville. Haag said the brakes on his car became wet in the Broadway underpass and they failed to function.

Woman's throat cut, man charged in case

GRANITE CITY — A woman whose throat was cut with a steak knife early Feb. 15 underwent surgery at St. Elizabeth Medical Center and was released from the hospital the same day, authorities said.

James Eric Schmeig, 26, of the 2200 block of Delmar Avenue was picked up at 1 p.m. Feb. 15 and was charged with aggravated battery and unlawful restraint in felony information issued through the Madison County State's Attorney's Office.

Katherine A. Weatherford, 28, of the 2200 block of Delmar was seated at the dining room table, bleeding from a four-inch laceration to the throat, when the first police officer got to the house at 1:30 a.m.

The injured woman at first declined to be aided by the officer, he said; she was screaming and refused to say how the wound had been inflicted.

An ambulance crew and other officers arrived at the home moments later and Weatherford was taken to the medical center.

Blood was on the kitchen floor and a steak knife was found on the bathroom floor.

Schmeig was in the dining room of the home when police arrived. Due to conflicting statements made to officers at the time, they could not determine how Weatherford received the injury.

Further investigation clarified the situation and Weatherford alleged she was held against her will inside the apartment, a detective said.

Schmeig was arrested and appeared in the Granite City court Feb. 16. A mittimus was issued and he was transferred to the Madison County Jail at Edwardsville later that day.

FTZ warehouse lease extended by GC Port

By John Rushing

GRANITE CITY — The Tri-City Regional Port District board met last week to discuss additional traffic control in the Port area, and to extend a lease between the Port's Foreign Trade Zone and The Delivery Network.

Other matters brought up were railway switch repairs, a proposal for a new manufacturing plant in the Port District area, and the possibility of adding another Trade Zone building.

Port District General Manager Robert Wydra has received a verbal go-ahead from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to install a gate on Rock Road, between the Port entrance at West 20th Street and a public truck scale.

He said that either a single electronic gate will be installed or four less expensive gates will be placed along the road leading toward the Chain of Rocks Canal locks. There will be an additional gate at the intersection of the levee road and Bauer Road.

"The board passed a resolution amending the terms of a lease agreement between the Foreign Trade Zone and The Delivery Network, a trucking, warehousing and distributing service.

One of The Delivery Network's affiliates, APC Warehouse Co., is a tenant of the Port.

The lease is for two years, with the option of a third year. The initial period, originating in 1987, will be completed this year.

The Delivery Network proposed an extension through 1991. "The two years are ending real fast," Wydra said. "I recommend we extend it."

Riverfront International, a manufacturer of brake fluid, approached the Port District about a year ago to discuss the possibility of leasing property.

The firm said at that time that it would probably be a year until any decisions were made. It is now conferring with potential lenders in order to secure a facility in the Port District.

Wydra estimated that a possible site would be on Slough Road near the Norfolk & Western Railway entrance into the Port. Riverfront International has reported that most of its materials would be brought in by rail.

"It was estimated that $6,320 is to be spent on repairs to two railroad switches in the district, although three switches are in need of attention.

Approval has been given to begin work replacing ties and installing new spikes and bolts to assure what Commissioner John Bellocq called "the integrity of the switches."

Wydra also reported that he is participating in financial discussions in regard to the creation of an International Business Service Center and a new Foreign Trade Zone building.

As of yet, it is uncertain whether the project can be accomplished, Wydra said, but he added, "In economic development, until someone tells you no, there's a good chance."

Labor to hold screening for candidates

GRANITE CITY — The Tri-City Trades and Labor Council, AFL-CIO, will hold pre-election political screening sessions for candidates seeking labor's endorsement in the April 4 election. The sessions are set for Saturday, Feb. 25, and Saturday, March 4.

Both screenings will take place on the second floor of the Labor Temple at 2014 State St., according to Roger Hoover, chairman of the Granite City Chapter, Greater Madison County Federation of Labor.

Incumbents seeking to retain office in upcoming elections in Granite City, Pontoon Beach, Madison, Venice and local townships are invited to appear before the screening committee from 9 a.m. to noon Feb. 25.

Interviews with other candidates will take place from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. March 4. Incumbents unable to be at the Feb. 25 screening may attend the March 4 session, Hoover said.

The Madison High School Band will present its second concert of the school year at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the high school auditorium.

Edwardsville and Granite City Stores Only

Also to be broadcast at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday is a follow-up program to the first show done by Madison County Issues and Answers on the Metro East Sanitary District Flood Tax Referendum. The show features Helen Hawkins and Joe Mitchell of Granite City, with some opposing views.

RCGA joins in endorsing flood-control referendum

GRANITE CITY — The St. Louis Regional Commerce and Growth Association has joined the list of area business, labor and civic groups endorsing the Feb. 28 referendum to rehabilitate the flood protection system serving Metro East communities.

"RCGA endorsement underscores the fact that the Metro East area is an important part of the whole St. Louis area economy," said Jim Broadway, campaign director for Citizens for Flood Protection.

"Clearly, the economic stranglehold that would hit Madison and St. Clair counties if we fail to rehabilitate our levees and floodgates would adversely affect the entire region on both sides of the Mississippi River," Broadway said.

The non-profit Citizens for Flood Protection committee was formed last year to promote passage of a 26-cent per $100 assessed valuation tax increase for the Metro East Sanitary District.

The increase would generate $6 million over five years, to match more than $25 million in federal, state and non-tax local resources for a $31 million public works project to be undertaken by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

In endorsing the referendum, members of the RCGA board observed that the project is vital to Metro East and a key to maintaining a strong regional St. Louis economy.

"This is a rare opportunity to undertake this project with massive federal and state financial support. We simply cannot let these dollars slip away from the region," Broadway said.

"But equally important, the flood protection system must be renewed to avert the economic stagnation that would inevitably result from Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) regulation in an unprotected floodplain region.

"FEMA regulations would prohibit residential, commercial or industrial development if the region is declared an unprotected floodplain, which the Corps of Engineers has warned will happen unless the renewal project is done.

"In that event, the economy of all MESD communities, where 200,000 people live, where there is more than $1.5 billion worth of property to protect, would be devastated," Broadway said.

"No building permits could be issued for new construction, and no mortgage money would be available to finance the sale of existing homes or to expand any businesses.

"There would be no hope for growth. We would see just rapid decline, business failures and relocations out of the region, and the loss of jobs by the hundreds," Broadway said.

"This is a project which simply must be done. We can do it for only $6 million in local taxes by approving the Feb. 28 referendum. Otherwise, we face paying the full cost locally, an estimated $44 million including interest, if we lose the grants.

"But either way, we must protect our region," he said.

Endorsing "Yes" votes on the Metro East Sanitary District Flood Protection Question on Feb. 28, the RCGA joined hands with other business, labor and community leaders:

•Leadership Council of Southwestern Illinois

•Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce

•East St. Louis Chamber of Commerce

•Cahokia Chamber of Commerce

•East-West Gateway Coordinating Council Regional Forum

•Southwestern Illinois Metropolitan Area Planning Commission

•Public officials and municipal governing authorities throughout the Metro East area

•Madison County Federation of Labor, AFL-CIO

•Southwestern Illinois Central Labor Council

•Operating Engineers Local 820

•Southwestern Illinois Building and Construction Trades Council (representing 40 associate unions)

•Southern Illinois District of Carpenters

•Granite City Board of Realtors

•Women Organized for Community Survival

These are some of the organizations that have joined citizens for Flood Protection in supporting this vital issue. We deeply appreciate their support," Broadway said.

More programs slated for new cable TV show

Two more programs have been taped for broadcast in the new "Madison County Issues and Answers" cable TV show.

The next show, hosted by local newspaper and radio reporters and also produced by Concom Cable, is an interview with State's Attorney William Haine. It is being broadcast Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. on Channel 10 locally, and again at 10:30 a.m. Saturday.

A program on the April 4 countywide 911 referendum will be shown March 1 at 6:30 p.m. and March 4 at 10:30 a.m.

Guests are Edwardsville Police Chief Bennett Dickmann and Highland Public Safety Director William Pierce. Those communities are the only ones presently having 911 service in Madison County. A phone surcharge of 65 cents per line would be added to user bills if the referendum to add 911 throughout the county passes, they said.

Also to be broadcast at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday is a follow-up program to the first show done by Madison County Issues and Answers on the Metro East Sanitary District Flood Tax Referendum. The show features Helen Hawkins and Joe Mitchell of Granite City, with some opposing views.

AARP Valentine dance held

The American Association of Retired Persons Inc., Granite City Chapter 1560, held its annual Valentine Day Sweetheart Dance at the Township Hall on Wednesday, Feb. 8. The business meeting was called to order at 6 p.m. by President June Fritz.

The chapter's community services committee announced that a chapter scholarship fund will be established, partly funded by donations from small business firms who will be listed on the back of the monthly newsletter.

The "Helping Hand Service Project of the Month" will be a collection of old eyeglasses and old hearing aids. Members were reminded to bring these articles to the March 8 membership meeting. After the business meeting, cake and coffee were served.

The Alley Kats provided the music. Attendance and 50-50 prizes were awarded and Viola Lindner and Bob Fletcher were crowned queen and king of the Sweetheart Dance.

Sex doesn't have to be just for the young

ST. LOUIS — Just about everywhere you look—television commercials, slick advertisements, billboards—it's the younger people who are considered sexy and "with it." It's no secret that popular culture equates an active sex life with being young.

But the way popular culture has conditioned us really has no logic, according to William Young, deputy director of the Masters and Johnson Institute in St. Louis. It's as if once you hit 50, you lose your sexuality.

The problem is that our culture does not prepare us for getting old, Young said. It's not something we think about until our skin, hair and joints start changing.

There is no reason why an elderly person can't enjoy sex, Young said. But there are two myths in our culture about elderly people and sexuality that stand in the way of this being easily accepted.

The first myth is elderly people shouldn't have sexual feelings—that somehow after one turns 40, he or she should stop having sex, he said.

"As if you became dead from the neck down," Young said.

Society is not very comfortable with talking freely about sex, so there are stereotypes which cast older people who are sexually active in a negative light.

It's the dirty-old-man, dirty-old-woman syndrome," he said.

The second major myth regarding older people and their sexuality is that it is somehow abnormal for an aging population to want to have sexual relations.

This is preposterous, Young said. There are so many changes an aging person has to cope with, and then to be told by society that sex is not an activity he or she should partake in is unfortunate, he said.

"Hollywood has really done a number on us. It's told us that sex is only for those who have hard bodies, the right cars, right jobs and right hairstyles," Young said.

The fact is that women live 25 percent of their lives in menopause, Young said. Not having to worry about contraception should free them sexually, he said.

"There is no loss of desire or loss of orgasmic capacity," he said. With men, there is no end to their fertility.

"It may take a little longer to get excited," he said. "But the body is slowing down all over. It also takes longer for an older person to walk around the block—that doesn't mean we stop walking around the block."

One physical ailment which often inhibits sexual drive in older people is high blood pressure, Young said. This is especially true for men. The medication for high blood pressure actually slows the blood flow, which will in turn slow down a male's reaction, he said.

But everyone has physical constraints on his or her sexuality at one time or another, he said. It's just a matter of being patient.

"Sexuality should last a lifetime," he said.

If an elderly couple finds their sexual relationship truly dysfunctional, that means they probably had problems with sex even when they were younger, Young said. This is true also for the elderly individual.

The diminished self-esteem that may come with aging may contribute to lack of sexual drive, also.

"There's often a lot of loneliness with the kids moved out," he said. "Their income is often lessened with retirement, which makes it difficult to maintain the standard of living they had earlier."

Young gave some suggestions for enhancing one's sex life, whether you're 25 or 60.

Good sex begins while your clothes are on. It's your attitude toward sex that determines whether you enjoy it or not.

Take responsibility for your own pleasure. Neither men nor women can appreciate the subjective aspects of being the other. Communication is vital.

Don't let sex get routine. Sexuality doesn't always mean intercourse. There's a lot of things we forget from when we were 16, Young said, such as hugging, kissing and cuddling.

Don't take sex too seriously. Funny things sometimes happen in the bedroom.

The only things necessary to have a good sex life are a healthy attitude, reasonably good health, and an interested and interesting partner, Young said.

"And that carries through at any age."

Red Cross unveils new CPR course

GRANITE CITY — To help people act quickly in life-or-death situations, the American Red Cross has introduced a new series of CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) and first-aid courses.

Using innovative teaching methods and the latest emergency care information, the five courses give people the skills to prevent and respond to emergencies. Ron Streiler, chapter manager at the Tri-City Red Cross Chapter, said three CPR courses for the general public (adult CPR, community CPR and infant and child CPR) teach people what to do in an emergency, how to call the emergency medical services system in their community, and how to sustain a person's life until the ambulance arrives.

Skills such as CPR, first-aid for choking, and rescue breathing (mouth-to-mouth resuscitation) are covered.

Stressing prevention as well as first-aid, the adult CPR and the community CPR courses teach participants how to reduce the risk and recognize the warning signals of a heart attack. Infant and child CPR discusses how to prevent childhood injuries and develop a safety checklist to spot dangers in the home.

Our older CPR courses taught people more skills than they really needed, causing them to forget what they had learned and to be reluctant to act in a crisis," Streiler said. "These new courses give people the confidence to step forward when help is needed."

The American Red Cross CPR: Basic Life support for the Professional Rescuer course is designed for paramedics, firefighters, lifeguards and other persons who respond to emergencies.

Going beyond the fundamentals of CPR, the course includes training in two-rescuer CPR and techniques for positioning and resuscitating victims of head, neck and back injuries. A chapter on the use of resuscitation masks tells how to guard against the spread of infectious diseases.

Tailored to the workplace, the American Red Cross Standard First-Aid course combines CPR and first-aid training in a compact eight-hour format. People learn what to do during cardiac and respiratory emergencies, and how to give first-aid for bleeding, shock, burns, poisoning, stroke and various injuries. The Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) has recognized the course as the basic level of training required for employers to comply with OSHA first-aid standards.

Using state-of-the-art learning techniques, Red Cross instructors utilize hands-on practice sessions, illustrated and easy-to-read workbooks, and videos depicting dramatic re-enactments of real-life emergencies. Participants must pass a series of skill checks and a written exam before being certified.

The Red Cross was the first organization in the United States to offer training in accident prevention, and has provided first-aid training for almost 90 years. Since 1974, the Red Cross has trained 25 million people in CPR.

roads leading to the bridges, Klorz said. Those roads were inspected prior to the closing of King, and they will be looked at again after Poplar is finished.

"We'll pay for any deterioration," the engineer said.

Starting March 1, and leading up to the expected opening of the King Bridge on May 15, parapet retaining wall renovation will take place along the outermost east and west bound ramps of Poplar.

The outside lane on each side will be shut down during repairs to the parapets, but those lanes will be reopened during each day's rush hours, approximately 6 to 9 a.m. and 3 to 6 p.m.

"This will impact traffic very little," he said of the parapet work.

After the opening of the King Bridge, asphalt will be removed and replaced with concrete overlay along a 1-mile stretch of Poplar, from a point just over Broadway in East St. Louis to a point 856 feet east of the east end of the Poplar bridge.

During the first phase of Poplar repairs the contractor will also be working under the bridge on pilings and piers that will be crucial to the second phase of the work, starting in the spring of 1990, Klorz said.

During the first phase, the contractor will have limited days in which to put in the steel and wife, Emily (Ghedini) Mejaski.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Bill (Patricia) Loftus of Granite City; two sisters, Mrs. John (Olga) Vilich and Mrs. Gerald (Mildred) Zarr, both of Madison; and four grandchildren.

The meeting location is handicapped-accessible. If special accommodations are needed, the Collinsville office can be contacted.

Removal of one lane weakens the next. You can't go in and indiscriminately remove concrete — you have to do it very carefully."

Outer-edge ramps in the center of the bridge will be redone first. Later, the entire bridge will be closed at a point just where it crosses the Mississippi River on the Illinois side, so that the weaving lanes "can be rebuilt. Those lanes are at a point where all incoming ramps merge, forcing people to decide which lane they will use as they cross the river into St. Louis," Klorz said.

Because of the way the bridge was built, the weaving lanes are located in one of the most sensitive areas.

"Removal of one lane weakens the next. You can't go in and indiscriminately remove concrete — you have to do it very carefully."

Restoring cars takes time, cash

By Peter Bohr

Heaven, to a classic-car enthusiast, is having your car judged as one of the finest examples in the country.

Well, open up those pearly gates for Bill Eisenlohr of Corona, Calif. The Antique Automobile Club of America just selected his 1955 Ford Thunderbird convertible as one of the top 40 cars in the nation.

Eisenlohr is a professional car restorer who specializes in Fords, particularly the 1955-1957 two-seat T-Birds. On a recent afternoon in his hilltop shop, I asked him how he turned a tired-out, 34-year-old car into one that looks like it was just born on the assembly line.

His answer was simple. "A lot of work and capital outlay," he told me.

The project began with a slightly rusty but complete T-Bird worth perhaps $5,000. Eisenlohr's first tasks involved gutting the interior, canking out the engine, and pulling off the chrome trim.

That may sound like good fun, but it's quite tedious. "When you dismantle a car, you end up with literally thousands of parts floating around the shop," Eisenlohr says.

Like an archaeologist on a dig, he carefully recorded the parts. He sorted them into groups (suspension parts, brakes parts and so on), and then put them in separate bins.

Eventually he went through the bins, deciding whether each part should be stripped, sand-blasted, repainted, rechromed, rebuilt or replaced. If a part was too worn to be reused, he replaced it with an "NOS" (new old stock) part. Although NOS parts can be costly, absolute originality is all-important if you expect to the show judges to drool over your car.

While the engine and seats were being rebuilt and reupholstered by specialists in other shops, Bill tackled the body. He stripped it to bare metal and repaired rusty spots. Then he pulled the body off the chassis and restored the T-Bird's underpinnings, including powder painting the frame.

He reinstalled the overhauled engine on the chassis, painted and rubbed-out the body, and then joined the body and chassis.

Finally, he replaced the glass, installed the new interior and all the exterior trim pieces, ever mindful that slightest slip of the screwdriver or wrench would mean catastrophe.

The result? A resplendent black beauty that's probably more perfect than new.

And how does it drive? You must be kidding. The car only has two miles on its odometer. It lives in an $8,000 fully enclosed trailer that carries it from show to show. That's the drawback of owning such a car: it's just too valuable to drive.

Altogether, Bill put 1,600 hours into the project, as well as $15,000 in new parts and another $5,000 for engine and upholstery work. The car is now on the market for $60,000.

But what if you wanted to restore an old car just to drive and enjoy? "A lot of tension ceases up right away," Bill says. "You wouldn't have to take the body off the chassis. And you could save on parts by using reproduction parts or good used parts."

Still, such a restoration might cost $30,000. "The cost of restoration depends on the car's condition, and how original and complete it is," Bill says. "And some cars — Chevys and Fords — are less expensive to restore because parts are easier to obtain."

For those who cannot afford a down-to-the-last-bolt restoration, Bill has a few suggestions:

"Take the car to one of the chains that paint a car in a day or two for a few hundred dollars. Many do reasonable work for the money. Make sure they repair rusty areas because rust eats away a car. Have a mechanic go through the brakes, steering and powertrain so the car is safe and won't leave you stranded. Reupholstering seats isn't usually very costly. Then go out and drive the car."

Which is something you don't dare do with Bill's famous Thunderbird.

Beware of 'Honest Eddies'

By Peter Bohr

The late automotive writer Ken Purdy once wrote about a mechanic who called himself "Honest Eddie." He called himself "honest" because he never stole a whole automobile.

He just stole pieces.

The business of car repair abounds with Honest Eddies. And it seems their fraudulent schemes to lighten our wallets fall into four categories.

Dastardly Deed No. 1: Charging for work not performed. "Routine 6,000-mile services are free money to dishonest mechanics," says Frank Jacob, an independent mechanic in Ridgecrest, Calif.

They top off the oil and spray a little carburetor cleaner on the cylinder head, and then charge for an oil change and valve adjustment. The newer the car, the easier the deception because the car usually runs well.

Dastardly Deed No. 2: Charging for unnecessary repairs. This is Honest Eddie's ploy: you get a new part all right, but one you didn't really need.

Car owners often invite this scheme by trying to diagnose their cars. "A fellow asked me to replace his car's carburetor," says Norm Davies, owner of a repair shop in Riverside, Calif.

"I suggested that he let me clean the jets first. Ten minutes later the car ran perfectly. Oh, how easy it would have been to sell him the $300 carburetor he thought he needed."

Dastardly Deed No. 3: Lowballing. You are lured into a shop because a mechanic gives you a very low estimate. Then he says your car apart and tells you it needs much more than he originally thought. Worse yet, he performs the additional work without your authorization and then surprises you with a staggering bill.

Dastardly Deed No. 4: Stupidity and carelessness. You should insist on test driving the car before you pay for repairs. You should insist on having old parts returned to you. You should insist on a written estimate. Your only recourse with a crooked mechanic is to try to get your money back. You always can sue a mechanic in small claims court, too.

You also can pay the bill with a credit card. Under federal law, there's a nifty, little-known provision called the "Special Rule for Credit Card Purchases."

If you have a problem with the goods and services that you purchased with a credit card (and with a check), and you have tried to correct the problem with the merchant, you can withhold payment on that charge. Within 60 days of the date the charge was posted, you must notify the issuer your credit card by letter about the dispute.

Child support sets record

The Illinois Department of Public Aid has raised monthly figures for child support collections throughout the state. Madison County, under the direction of State's Attorney William R. Haine, collected a record $10,411, surpassing the previous high in this county by over $17,000.

Haine credited his child-support staff, as well as Circuit Clerk Willard V. Portell and his staff for the achievement. "I also appreciate the cooperation of the fathers in Madison County who have been making their child support payments. They are not only obeying the law, but are also doing the right thing for their children," Haine said.

Director of bus station resigns

Rudy C. Johnson, facility director at the Bi-State Illinois Station-Garage, East St. Louis, resigned Feb. 9, effective Feb. 10, citing personal reasons and other factors.

Johnson assumed the director position on Jan. 3.

Previously he was general manager of the Berkshire Regional Transit Authority in Pittsfield, Mass. Prior to that he was managing director of the Metro East Transit District of Madison County, and for a time also performed the same function for the St. Clair Transit District.

Paul J. Ballard, Bi-State deputy executive director/general manager of operations, said of Johnson: "He is a 10-year transit veteran who brought a great deal of experience to the Illinois Station. In the short time he was here, he had begun to put into place a number of operating practices which would have further improved the quality of service provided by the Illinois Station. It's with regret that we accept his resignation."

Oliver W. Holmes Jr., superintendent of the Illinois Station, will serve as acting director until further notice. The facility director manages all operations and maintenance functions at the station.

Balance in road funds sets December record

It was also the third highest month-end balance in the history of the funds, Burris said.

The December mark was $148 million higher than the balance recorded at the end of December 1987.

Colorado beckons skiers, from beginners to old pros

By Dianne Swenson Koehnke

If you always have wanted to ski, you never are too old to learn, according to Jim Deem, a skiing instructor at Breckenridge, Colo.

Deem, a former resident of Chesterfield, claims that anyone who can walk can ski. His main advice in beginning is to relax, don't look at the skis and let your body move to the rhythm of the hills.

From beginners to experienced skiers, Breckenridge has much to offer. According to International Voyageur Publications, in the past six years, more than $20 million has been spent on mountain expansion.

In addition, Breckenridge has developed 48 acres of skiing terrain, which now makes the total skiable area more than 1,500 acres.

Beginning, intermediate and advanced ski lessons are available at the Breckenridge Ski Area Ski School. More than 180 instructors give pointers on downhill skiing and snowboarding. The school also provides ski instruction for handicapped people and a "ski for free" program for disabled students and their teachers.

For the beginning skier, a private lesson is highly recommended. Instructors such as Deem offer the novice not only expert advice, but also instill confidence. Half- or full-day group lessons also are available.

Slopes ranging from green, the easiest trails, to blue, black and expert levels provide a variety of terrain for all levels. Unfortunately, some levels are not as clearly marked as they could be and getting caught in a dangerous area of powdered snow is a possibility, especially at the, higher levels. If a skiing injury does occur, however, help is readily available, because the area is patrolled by snowmobiles. The Breckenridge Medical Center is nearby.

A major advantage of Breckenridge is that it is just one of several ski areas in Summit County. If skiing at Breckenridge is not your forte, or if you want to explore other ski areas, you can try skiing at Keystone and North Peak, Arapahoe Basin, and Copper Mountain. Each area has distinct advantages: Keystone, a planned community owned by Ralston Purina, offers the most extensive night skiing available. At Keystone, a high-speed six-passenger gondola carries the visitor up to Summit House, where a delicious fare of Swiss fondue can be obtained at Der Fondue Chessel.

The Arapahoe Basin, with an elevation of 12,410 feet, offers the skier Copper Mountain, which has been designed to provide skiers of various expertise with separate areas. Experienced skiers don't ever to worry about the beginners, who can learn on more gentle slopes.

For children, Breckenridge and the Keystone/Arapahoe Basin area all offer nurseries, day-care and children's ski schools.

If you decide that skiing is not your sport, but you are with a group or family of skiers, you still can find interesting things to do. Ice skating is available at Keystone as well as in Breckenridge. The Breckenridge Nordic Center specializes in cross-country skiing. Snowmobiling tours and sleigh rides also can be arranged.

If none of these activities appeal to you, there always is the tried and true sport of shopping. A variety of shops are located in downtown Breckenridge.

Three art galleries on main street give the tourist a variety of choice in original paintings and sculptures. In nearby Silverthorne, a factory outlet center houses various discount stores. Liz Claiborne, Van Heusen, Royal Doulton and Maidenform, are just a few of the name-brand outlets.

Traditional American and fast food restaurants also are abundant throughout the area.

If you plan to visit any of these areas during the winter months, bring along plenty of warm clothes. Thermal-lined gloves and socks, several sets of long underwear, turtle-neck sweaters and boots are a must. Protect your face with a neck gator and bring plenty of sunscreen along, too.

For more information, call: Breckenridge, (303) 453-2918; Copper Mountain, 800-488-8386; Keystone, (303) 468-1205.

Tips for safe skiing

The Breckenridge Medical Center has several suggestions for making your ski trip a safe one. Some of their recommendations include:

- Stay in good shape all year. An exercise program that includes aerobic exercises will increase endurance. Leg stretching exercises also are a good idea.
- Warm up before you go out on the slopes. Stretching exercises that loosen and warm tight muscles and ligaments are advised.
- Make sure all equipment is functioning correctly. Skis should be equipped with brakes that stop the skier from "windmilling" down the slope after the bindings give way.
- Dress warmly. Cold ligaments and muscles may be stiffer and more prone to injury.
- Make sure you can see well.

On sunny days, wear high quality sunglasses or dark goggles. Don't ski if the light is poor.

• Know your limitations. Accidents often occur when a skier tries a slope that is too steep.

• Know when to stop. Tired skiers have slower reflexes and are more likely to fall. Don't push for that last run.

These final suggestions can help the beginning skier:

- Learn how to get off the chair lift. Some lifts are slower than others. Watch the signs and be ready to put your skis tips up, prepare to stand, and let the chair push you down.
- Watch out for unmarked or poorly marked areas.
- Ungroomed areas are prime spots for ski injuries. If you think you may be on a slope that is too difficult for you, ask one of the ski patrol for help.

TOM HANKS, whose latest film is "The 'Burbs," says his career as an actor was "a real fortunate accident."

Tom Hanks continues 'accident' of success

It has been a "Big" year for actor Tom Hanks.

The Hollywood Foreign Press Association awarded Hanks a Golden Globe Award as best actor in a comedy film for his work in "Big." Hanks also has been nominated for an Oscar as best actor for his excellent portrayal of a 13-year-old boy thrust into an adult world in that film.

Born and raised in Oakland, Calif., the talented star of hits like "Dragnet," "Punchline," "Splash," "Volunteers," "The Money Pit" and "Nothing in Common" continues to upgrade his leading-man status.

"This acting thing is just a real fortunate accident," Hanks says. "It's like a bolt out of the blue. I never grew up saying I wanted to act. I just stumbled into my first acting work playing Grumio in 'The Taming of the Shrew' with the Great Lakes Shakespeare Festival and with just a couple of exceptions, I've been stumbling successfully ever since."

"What I don't think the public realizes is that I'm not a bad serious actor. Comedy is serious work. If you don't think so, try it."

Hanks' newest film is "The 'Burbs." Hanks says the unusual script should hit home with just about everyone.

"Supposedly the suburbs are this place where we have the modern-day version of the log cabin in the woods. You have your house. You have your land and it's a great place to raise a family and maybe even retire to. That's what the suburbs are supposed to be. But in fact, the suburbs have become a place where anything can happen."

Hanks' character in the film, Ray Peterson, seems to have everything.

"He's married, he's got a kid, he lives in a nice house in a relatively nice neighborhood. And he should be terribly happy and he's wondering why he's not. Hanks says, "There's something at the core of this that is not right. And that's the challenge for me of this part, to communicate Ray's off-screen dilemma."

In the film, Ray decides not to go away on vacation and stay in his home instead. "It's just another extension of the normalcy that he's fallen into," Hanks says. "So Ray thinks he'll try a more Bohemian thing, which is to just hang around the house."

The catalyst for the comedy in "The 'Burbs" is the Klopek, an unnatural family that moves into the neighborhood.

Movie News

the transition from comedy to pathos, as he has shown in 'Punchline' and 'Nothing in Common.' Tom is now proving himself as one of this country's most versatile actors."

Co-starring in "The 'Burbs" with Hanks are Carrie Fisher as his wife, Carol; Corey Feldman as Ricky, a spacey neighborhood teen-ager; Bruce Dern as Mark Rumsfield, a swaggering ex-soldier who is one of Hanks' neighbors; and comedian/actor Rick Ducommun as Hanks' next-door neighbor, Art.

"My description of 'The 'Burbs' is that it's a psycho-drama-comedy," Hanks says. "Hopefully, we've all done our jobs well enough that it will be both interesting and funny."

"You either like this movie or I see to it that the Klopek move next door to you."

Film borrows from Kirkwood but won't do footage there

Kirkwood Police Chief Dan Linza got a call from Universal Studios property master Nicholas Romanac. Romanac needed some information on Kirkwood, plus a few things like signs, decals and other items that contained the Kirkwood name and city symbol.

Romanac said he needed the items for "Parenthood," a comedy starring Steve Martin in production on the Universal lot in Hollywood. The movie, directed by Ron Howard, will be slated for release in August.

Set in St. Louis, none of the principal players or the director plan to set foot here during the shooting. A second-unit team will come for a few days to shoot some exterior shots.

Cancer Society plans 'Lowfat Pig Out'

Can Americans trade in their sugar doughnuts for bran muffins—at least, for one day? That's the challenge of the Great American Lowfat Pig Out, a daylong celebration of healthy foods and good nutrition hosted by the American Cancer Society. During the fourth annual Lowfat Pig Out, to be held March 9, consumers are encouraged to

"pig out" on those foods that ACS research indicates may help prevent cancer. Recommended foods include:

- High fiber foods—whole grains, wheat and bran cereals, rice, plain popcorn, whole wheat bread, peaches, strawberries, potatoes, spinach and tomatoes.
- Fruits and vegetables rich in vitamins A and C—carrots, peaches, apricots, cantaloupe, grapefruit, oranges, strawberries, tomatoes, red peppers, green peppers, squash, broccoli.

- Cruciferous vegetables—broccoli, cauliflower, cabbage, kale, brussels sprouts.
- Lean meats, poultry, fish and lowfat dairy products as replacements for high-fat meats and dairy products.

"The Lowfat Pig Out shows that eating right can be fun as well as beneficial to our health," said local spokesman Dee Godat. "On March 9, ACS volunteers will be at restaurants, schools, grocery stores, and businesses to take this lifesaving message to the public."

Visiting Nurse Association offers personal health care in the home

By Dan Oliver
Staff affiliate

FAIRVIEW HEIGHTS—Providing home health care has been the most rewarding part of Barbara Moore's nursing career.

Moore, a registered nurse who has been with the St. Clair County Visiting Nurses Association (VNA) for four years, says the the VNA will provide care and instruction to those of all ages. Those not covered by Medicare can be referred to VNA by their personal doctors for home care treatment.

Moore said with a doctor's authorization, VNA nurses can visit and treat virtually anyone who is confined at home due to injury or illness.

The VNA has been based in Fairview Heights since 1979. It has 120 full-time employees, including social workers, therapists and speech pathologists. Almost 75 percent of the home care is provided to Medicare patients. The VNA was originally chartered to provide home health care service in 1918. VNA workers serve all of St. Clair County.

Moore said that during a routine home visit, a nurse will perform a variety of medical tasks. Nurses routinely monitor vital signs, take blood and urine samples and (if needed) replace catheter tubes. She said the trend toward home health care is partly due to "the medical profession finally giving us (nurses) credit for our skills."

It was only 10 years ago that nurses were authorized to use stethoscopes, she said.

A few weeks ago, Moore made a home visit to longtime Belleville resident Doris Burrow. Though Burrow is not one of Moore's regular patients, the women know each other. Moore fills in for other nurses during their days off.

Burrow said she enjoys the visits from the VNA nurses. "My regular nurse (Donna Bush) had the day off, but Barbara has been here several times," said Burrow, 50, who was diagnosed with multiple sclerosis in 1971.

Though confined to a wheelchair, Burrow remains active and optimistic.

"I still do laundry and some kitchen work. And I have to keep up with my two grandchildren when they're here," she said.

After checking her vital signs and changing a catheter bag, Moore tells Burrow she is doing fine.

Moore said nurses instruct patients to monitor their own conditions, and to properly use prescribed medications.

Like many patients confined at home, Burrow looks forward to the weekly visits by her nurse, Moore said.

"I've found the patients appreciate us more, and the home setting is an ideal environment for health care," she said.

Moore added that anyone can request the VNA's services.

Even low-fat dairy products provide calcium in tasty ways

As a source of protein, carbohydrates and many important vitamins and minerals, dairy products such as milk, cheese and yogurt long have held a prominent place in the American diet. Milk and other dairy foods are also the major dietary source of calcium.

Yet many dairy products, including whole milk, most cheeses and ice cream, are very high in fat and cholesterol.

While whole milk has less than 4 percent fat by weight, most of milk's weight comes from water. When considering the nutritional components of milk, 48 percent of whole milk's calories come from fat. The American Institute for Cancer Research's Dietary Guidelines to Lower Cancer Risk recommend that the level of fat in a diet be reduced to 30 percent of total calories or less. Selecting skim milk (4 percent of calories from fat) or 1 percent milk (23 percent of calories from fat) can be helpful in meeting this target.

•Use skim or nonfat dry milk in cooking.

•Choose low-fat varieties of milk products, such as low-fat yogurt and cottage cheese, and part-skim or reduced-calorie cheeses.

Slow-cook southwestern stew to appease winter appetites

All too often a weekend devoted to fun turns into a marathon of meal preparation for the cook. Here is a healthy and delicious way to appease a hungry crowd that allows the cook time to enjoy the weekend, too.

Apres-Fun Pork Stew should be prepared before the day's activities begin. Let it simmer all day long in a slow cooker to transform gradually into a steaming stew that will be ready for everyone to enjoy when they return.

Tender black beans and cubes of pork are spiced with flavors of the Southwest — chiles, tomato, cilantro and lime — then spiked with a hint of Mexican beer for an unusual variation of traditional pork stew. Toasted slivered almonds stirred in just before serving add a delicious, contrasting crunch and nutty flavor.

Convenient and delicious, Apres-Fun Pork Stew offers sound nutrition as well.

Apres-fun pork stew

- 1 cup black beans
- 1 cup blanched slivered almonds
- 1 lb. sliced bacon
- 1 onion, chopped

- 1 tsp. chili powder
- 1 tsp. cumin
- 1/4 lb. pork butt, cut in 2 inch cubes
- 1 bottle (12-oz.) dark Mexican beer or 1 1/2 cups beef broth
- 1 can (14.5-oz.) stewed tomatoes
- 1 can (4 oz.) diced green chiles
- 2 cups chopped fresh cilantro or parsley
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 2 tsp. lime juice
- 1 tsp. oregano
- 1 jalapeno pepper, seeded, minced, or to taste (optional)

Soak beans in 4 cups cold water 8 hours or overnight. Drain. Place beans in saucepan with 3 cups fresh water. Bring to boil. Simmer 1 hour.

Spread almonds in single layer on baking sheet. Bake at 375° for 5 to 8 minutes, stirring occasionally, until lightly browned. Cool.

In large frying pan, cook bacon over medium heat until crisp. Drain on paper towels, reserving fat in pan.

Stir onions, chili powder and cumin into pan. Cook, stirring occasionally, until onions are soft, about 3 minutes. Remove onions. Place in large pot.

Add oil to frying pan to heat.

Add pork cubes in small batches. Brown well on all sides. Remove to pot. Stir beer, tomatoes, chiles and garlic into pot. Bring mixture to boil. Stir in beans and bean cooking liquid. Transfer mixture to slow cooker or conventional oven. In slow cooker, cook on high setting 4 1/2 hours or on low setting 9 hours. Conventionally, bake at 300° for 4 1/2 hours.

Fifteen minutes before serving, stir in cilantro, lime juice, oregano and jalapeno pepper. Stir in almonds.

Spoon stew in large bowls to serve.

Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Spice snaps

Chill, covered, several hours or overnight.

On lightly floured surface, roll out one-fourth dough at a time to one-sixteenth inch thickness. Keep remaining dough refrigerated. Cut with 2-inch round cutter or glass.

Place on lightly greased cookie sheet. Bake in 350° oven 6 minutes or until very lightly browned around edge. Cool on wire rack. Makes about 7 dozen.

Melt-in-your-mouth success can be cooked in 20 minutes

It doesn't have to be spring to enjoy Pasta Primavera. It is a one-dish pasta meal, quick and delicious, that perfectly fits today's active lifestyle. Possible to be chock full of important nutrients, the trick of the dish is to start with the right ingredients.

Microwave Pasta Primavera uses low-fat milk as the basis for its sauce. Jarlsberg cheese is one of the lowest-fat hard cheeses. Only one cup, 4 ounces, adds mellow richness to this dish. Use a lean variety of ham for a flavor boost that does not contribute significant amounts of fat. A handful of toasted almonds adds fiber, crunch and more variety in nutrients.

Great taste and good nutrition are important to today's active lifestyles. After a long day away from home, ease of preparation is also important. Microwave Pasta Primavera is a one-dish meal that can be prepared in less than 20 minutes. When starting with the right ingredients, great taste and good nutrition come together for a satisfying dinner in a snap.

Microwave pasta primavera

- 1/2 cup blanched sliced almonds
- 4 oz. dry spinach fettuccine (about 2 cups)
- 1 1/2 cups low-fat milk
- 1 tsp. cornstarch
- 1 tsp. Dijon mustard
- 1 cup grated Jarlsberg cheese
- 2 tsp. thinly sliced green onions
- 1/4 cup pepper
- 1 cup smoked ham strips
- 1 cup red bell pepper strips
- 1 cup broccoli flowerets
- 1 cup cauliflower

Spread almonds in single layer on microwave-safe plate. Microwave on high power 3 minutes, stirring halfway through cooking time, until almonds are lightly browned. Cool on counter.

Cook pasta in boiling water according to package directions. Drain. Keep warm.

Whisk together milk, cornstarch and mustard in large, microwave-safe bowl, until cornstarch is thoroughly dissolved. Cover bowl with waxed paper. Microwave on high power 5 to 6 minutes, until mixture just boils. Watch carefully as milk boils over easily.

Remove from oven. Whisk until smooth. Whisk in cheese, green onions and pepper, until cheese is melted and sauce is smooth. Stir in ham strips and red pepper strips. Set aside.

Place broccoli and cauliflower in microwave-safe plastic bag. Microwave on high power 2 minutes, until tender-crisp.

Réheat sauce, if necessary. Stir in toasted almonds, broccoli and cauliflower.

Divide pasta between serving bowls. Spoon sauce over pasta to serve.

Makes 2 servings.

Stuffed potato with chipped beef rarebit

- 1 pkg. (4 oz.) frozen creamed chipped beef in a bag, thawed
- 1/2 cup (2 oz.) shredded cheddar cheese
- 1/4 tsp. dry mustard
- 1/4 tsp. Dash ground red pepper
- 2 baking potatoes, baked
- 1 small tomato, chopped (about 1/2 cup)

In small saucepan, combine creamed chipped beef, cheese, mustard and red pepper. Cook over low heat until mixture is hot and bubbly. Slash tops of potatoes. Fluff with fork. Spoon creamed chipped beef mixture on top. Top with tomato. Makes 2 servings.

Turkey makes light work of trimming fat from meals

When counting calories, it seems as though most foods are not suitable for a diet.

Instead of turning to celery sticks, cottage cheese and other old-time "diet foods," look to an old favorite, turkey, to add excitement and pizzazz to calorie-trimmed meals.

Turkey when dieting? Yes! But not the kind with dressing and gravy that takes all day to prepare. For quick, nutritious and satisfying calorie-controlled meals, dieters can turn to prepared turkey products for menu inspiration. Ready-to-serve right from the package or gently heated as a hot entree, versatile turkey breast can be combined with Mother Nature's finest low-calorie produce offerings for a world of exciting, slimming meals ready in short order.

Slices of turkey breast heat with a garlic and white wine-flavored combination of onion, green pepper, tomatoes and ripe olives. It is a satisfying skillet dinner that can be prepared in less than 20 minutes. Because there is virtually no waste with breast of turkey, one pound will serve four generously.

For an exotic taste of the Orient, try Szechuan Turkey Rolls, a fun-to-eat entree with only about 200 calories per serving. Crisp, cool iceberg lettuce leaves wrap around a spicy, pleasingly "hot" filling of turkey strips flavored with green onion, soy, fresh ginger, garlic and red pepper flakes. The combination of hot filling and cool lettuce is part of the charm of this dish, so be sure to fill lettuce leaves at the last possible moment. For casual fun, enjoy the rolls Chinese-style, picked up and eaten like a sandwich.

Basque turkey

- 1 lb. fully cooked turkey breast, cut in 1 inch slices
- 1 large green pepper, cut in strips
- 1/2 cup dry white wine
- 2 tbsp. sliced ripe olives
- 1 clove garlic, finely chopped
- 2 large tomatoes, cut in 1 inch chunks

Combine onion, pepper, wine, olives and garlic in large skillet. Place turkey over vegetables. Bring to boil. Turn down heat. Cover. Simmer 10 minutes.

Add tomatoes. Cover. Simmer 1 minute more.

Makes 4 servings, about 230 calories each.

Szechuan turkey rolls

- 1 lb. fully cooked turkey breast
- 1/2 cup chopped green onion
- 1/4 cup dry sherry
- 1 tsp. soy sauce
- 1 tsp. grated fresh ginger or 1/2 tsp. ground ginger
- 1 tsp. cornstarch
- 1/2 tsp. crushed red pepper flakes
- Pinch garlic powder
- 12 large iceberg lettuce leaves

Cut turkey in strips about 1/4-by-1/4-by-2 inches.

Combine onion, sherry, soy, ginger, cornstarch, pepper flakes and garlic powder in medium bowl. Add turkey. Toss to coat. Let stand 10 minutes.

Heat turkey mixture in large non-stick skillet over medium heat 5 minutes, stirring constantly.

Place 1/4 cup turkey in center of each lettuce leaf. Fold sides of lettuce leaf toward center over turkey. Roll up starting from unfolded edge.

Makes 4 servings (3 rolls each), about 200 calories per serving.

Enjoy restaurant without overeating

In a restaurant, anyone trying to limit calories still can hold them at a reasonable level.

Try these suggestions:

•Before leaving home, make a cup of light broth or soup. It can be low-calorie, warm and satisfying and will take an edge off hunger.

•Try to order first to avoid being influenced by choices of others.

•In lieu of a cocktail, order a wine spritzer, or non-alcoholic orange juice and seltzer.

•Order a la carte, and get exactly what is wanted.

•Ask for all dressings and sauces on the side.

•Order 2 or 3 appetizers, instead of a large meal.

Tender and delicious

Debut dieting success with shopping preview

A trip to a supermarket sets the stage for a diet's success or failure. Here is how to improve the chances for success:

•Prepare a shopping list at a time when hunger is not a consideration. Base the list on a week's menus that focus on fruits and vegetables, whole grains and cereals, low-fat dairy products, and lean meats, poultry and fish. Include herbs, seasonings, reduced-calorie dressings and products that give low-calorie flavor and variety to your meals.

•Plan to shop at a time when energy level is high, shortly after a meal or snack. If possible, choose those times when the store is likely to be less crowded.

Davis rebounds for third place at state

CHAMPAIGN — Recovering nicely from a first-round upset, Granite City High School 125-pounder Brent Davis rolled to five straight victories to take third place at the Illinois Class AA State Wrestling Tournament on Saturday.

Davis finished his senior season with a 49-2 record and wrapped up a 149-20 career mark with a 15-0 technical fall win over Chicago Heights' Marlon on Saturday night.

That was Davis' fourth win of the day following a 1-1 record on Friday. Davis had lost in the first round 4-2 to Oak Lawn Community senior Chuck Wagner. Davis had won 26 matches in a row before that. Wagner, who finished at 40-4, eventually made it all the way to the championship bout — which helped keep Davis alive in the tournament — where he lost to New Lenox Providence junior Ken Gerdes 8-1. Gerdes (45-2) was ranked first in the state at 125 heading into the state meet, with Davis second.

Davis' 49 wins were the most in the state and one shy of the state record of 50 set by Palatine's Mike Crestham in 1986-87. After losing to Wagner, Davis pinned Lockport's Jeff Cordova at 1:43 in the preliminary round of wrestling Friday night.

On Saturday, Davis rolled to four more victories. He scored a technical fall over sophomore Tom Buenik of Cicero Morton, 15-0 at 4:02; beat junior Hector Saldana of Aurora East 6-4 in the quarterfinal wrestling; scored a technical fall over junior Jay Brouk of Blue Island Eisenhower, 15-0 at 2:30 in the semifinal wrestling; and then wrapped up third place with the win over St. Clair (41-4) at 4:50.

Only two other area wrestlers placed in the top six. Cahokia senior Abby Wyckoff finished second at 119, losing 12-5 to Evanston senior Shannyn Gillespie (34-2) in the title bout. Myers' Comanche teammate, senior Darnell Thomas (40-2), also took second at 160, losing an exciting 1-0 match in the final seconds to senior Bill Guide (39-2) of Chicago Mt. Carmel.

Trojans lose two; face Greyhounds in regional game

By Mike Blackshere
Correspondent

After getting their first road win of the year at Waterloo Gibault last week, it seemed as if the Trojans were ready to end the season with a bang.

Instead, Madison fizzled, losing its final two regular-season games to enter the regional at 4-18. The Trojans will meet Lebanon in the Columbia Class

A Regional tonight (Wednesday) at 9 p.m. But they aren't exactly powering their way into the playoffs with a full head of steam.

On Friday the Trojans made their way to Teutopolis, home of the Wooden Shoes. You can snicker at their nickname, but not their basketball game.

JOE WALLACE looks for a shot for the Warriors in a recent game.

Warrior offense still skidding in 48-36 SWC loss to East Side

EAST ST. LOUIS — The East St. Louis Flyers kept alive hopes of winning the Southwest Conference basketball title with a 48-36 win over the Warriors on Saturday.

For Granite City, it was the 20th straight conference defeat over three seasons. The Warriors fell to 7-27 with their seventh straight defeat. It was Granite City's 10th straight road loss in conference play since a victory at East St. Louis on Feb. 21, 1987.

L.T. Nash and Carlos Skinner had 12 points each and Kendall Peabody chipped in with 11 as the Flyers improved to 13-9 (7-2 in SWC play). East Side is a game behind Collinsville and will host the Kahoks (8-1, 46-8) on Friday with a chance to gain a share of the conference title.

The Warriors got 12 points from John VanBuren and 10 from Matt Cook, but fellow starters Kory Burton, Jeff Schaefer and Mike Wilkinson combined for only 12 points, with Wilkinson getting only two in the Warriors' lowest-scoring game of the year.

Granite City (0-9 in the SWC) will get one more chance to give Don Deterford a conference win when Alton comes to Memorial Gym for an 8 p.m. game Friday in the regular-season finale. The Redbirds (4-5, 11-8) have lost six straight and could finish as low as fourth, but Belleville West

Devils getting the nod at Columbia Regional

If you look at the polls, there are several Class A teams in the area who have fared better than the Red Devils this year.

Venice has barely received a mention in the statewide ranking, while teams like East St. Louis Assumption, Wesclin and Carle have been mentioned regularly. Still, one can't help but realize that the Devils are still feared and respected throughout the area.

Jesse Hall is long gone, but the image the Devils gained during his career, leading up to the 1987 state championship, seems to linger. No team looks past the Devils, and they are the No. 1 seed in this week's Columbia Class A Regional.

Although Assumption has been ranked higher most of the year, the Devils got the top seed because they beat the Pioneers in East St. Louis on Jan. 6 — just four days before the seeding meeting.

The Devils moved along on cruise control for most of the regular season, but they kicked it into first gear on Friday in the regular-season finale in a devastating show of strength and vintage Venice basketball, the Red Devils ran the Alton Marquette Explorers out of their own gym and nearly all the way into the nearby Mississippi River with a 101-65 win.

The Devils' fast break was so effective that coach Clinton Harris was kidded about it by some pleased Venice fans near the end of the game.

"Hey, Clint," one of them yelled. "Let's see if you can set up a play and score something without the transition game."

The transition game was marvelous to behold on Friday. Senior Daryl Jackson was magnificent, scoring 21 points while adding 15 assists and 10 rebounds for a triple double. Almost everyone else who played was effective, with Hosea King and Erwin Claggett combining for 45 more points. And the defense was tight, with Jackson and King combining for nine blocked shots, which made the Devils' running game even more effective.

"It was like a clinic out there," said Venice High School principal John Rush.

"I can't say anything bad about anybody tonight," said Harris, who is trying to avoid pulling a Norm Stewart. Harris had been in the hospital for two days prior to the game with a kidney infection, but his players' performance was soothing medication.

In short, the Devils deserve the top seed in this week's regional and it will be very difficult for someone to deny them their fourth straight regional title if they can come anywhere close to Friday's performance.

Obviously, Assumption will be the chief roadblock. The Devils (19-4) and Pioneers (16-7) figure to meet Friday in the championship game. Only one other team — Duplo at 12-10 — is over .500, and the Pioneers figure to take care of the Tigers on Wednesday.

Still, Harris refuses to assume anything.

"Columbia will be tough on their home court," he said.

"This is a whole new season. I am glad we got the top seed. That gives us a bye and one less chance to stumble."

Indeed, if Venice and Assumption do meet Friday, the Pioneers will have played Wednesday and Thursday while the Devils will have only played Thursday. Barring a major upset, the two area powers will play for the title. Venice has won two of three meetings this year.

The Devils squeaked by the Pioneers 60-58 in the game which earned them the top seed. Venice won by eight at home on Jan. 27 in a game in which Assumption starters Ronald Scott and Maurice Horton were out. Although Venice's Hosea King was slowed by the flu also, And the Devils led that game by 20 points until a too-tight, too-late Pioneer rally. Assumption did get by the Devils 62-57 in the Sparta Tournament championship game on Jan. 21, scoring the game's last 10 points.

That proved to the Pioneers and coach Ron Woods that they could beat the Devils. Assumption has plenty of incentive this week, knowing their next loss will be the last in school history. Assumption is closing at the end of the school year.

"We want this last team to be one Assumption fans can remember," Woods said after the Sparta Tournament. "We've accomplished some goals this year, like beating Venice and winning this tournament. Now we want to win 20 and win the regional."

They will have 20 wins heading into Friday's title game, but it says here that's where the road will end for the Pioneers.

With Jackson and King, the Devils have two veteran players who have been through the big games before. Jackson was a sophomore starter on the 1987 state champs. King should be effective inside and Jackson is a tremendous player all over the court. And Claggett and Deves Parran give the Devils a better outside game than the Pioneers, who aren't consistently effective from the perimeter unless a-4 forward Monteff Dixon is hitting jump shots. Junior center Ian Stankovic is a load, but a solid effort from King should cancel out his efforts.

The Devils will bring home the plaque on Friday and head for the Vandalia Sectional with revenge on their minds. It was in the sectional semifinals last year that Paul Lusk and the Wesclin Warriors ended Venice's season with a 61-59 victory. Lusk and the Warriors figure to be waiting for the Devils there again next week.

A letter home from jail — or at least Norman, Okla.

Dear Mom and Dad,
I'm writing you this little note so you don't get the wrong idea about college life here in Norman. We've been getting a lot of mail press lately so I thought I'd drop you a line just to let you know your No. 1 son and favorite football player was OK-L-A.

It takes more than the recent half dozen or so felony arrests and a little NCAA probation to get an Oklahoma Sooner's dober down.

I've been thinking a lot about you lately. In fact, I almost gave you a call just the other day. I was just about to dial the number when the desk sergeant reminded me that we only got one telephone call and all the first-string players had called their attorneys. Talk about delivering under pressure. I was impressed.

Don't be worried about all the things that are getting into the newspapers about the school here and the football program. Sure, there's some drug trafficking, gang rapes, slapping around a few business students and a couple shootings and stabbings. But this is college. What do people expect?

I guess you can tell all of this stuff here at school is kind of getting to me. If I make me wonder about people's priorities. I mean, it's not like we lost to Missouri. Besides, what good is a 9-3 season if you can't unwind a little when it's over?

As you might imagine, all this unfair press is starting to make just about everybody a little short-tempered. Even Coach Switzer is starting to get edgy, I think.

The other day we were at a team meeting to talk about some new offensive formations and the appeals process. Suddenly, right out of the blue Coach jumps out of his sedan chair and screams, "I've about had it with y'all. There'll be no more Mr. Nice Guy until we go at least six weeks without a felony arrest."

Personally, I think he told the wrong guys. Shouldn't he be saying that to the y'os at the Norman police department? And what about the alumni? What good are alumni if they can't keep the cops in line?

Well, after Coach got that Mr. Nice Guy business off his chest, things seemed to calm down a lot and the meeting went OK-L-A.

By Dennis Barnidge

until someone asked if he could be excused early for a grand jury appearance.

The last time I saw Coach's eyes get that big was when the university president walked closer than three feet behind Coach at a public function.

Anyway, after that things just got plain crazy. Coach really laid down the law.

"Boys," he said, "We are not animals. And we can't act like animals."

Brother, you should have heard the thud when all those square jaws hit the ground. The last time I saw that kind of reaction around here was when Coach got angry and canceled game-day cartoons.

Coach said he hated to set up a bunch of picky rules, but something had to be done until the newspapers got this stuff out of their system.

With that in mind, he said he was sorry but he was going to limit the number of rounds of ammunition that we could check out of the equipment room at any one time, and the sorority dancing girls have to be out of the athletic dorm by 2 a.m. on weekdays, and no more convenience store or gas station robberies.

Like I said, most of it was just little stuff.

I'm not too worried about those things. We're Sooners. We can tough it out.

One big rule change did come out of the meeting, and it involved the weirdest thing — grades.

In the past, Coach had always urged us to try to get a couple — grades, that is — each semester. This time, though, he took it a step further.

He said anybody whose suspended sentence or probationary period was more than three times higher than their grade-point average — you should see the eyes in that room glaze over when the Coach mentioned grade-point average — had better have one helluva spring practice. That or else get used to living on a five-figure income.

Talk about crackin' the whip. Mom and Dad, you know I love Coach Switzer like an uncle, but when I hear that kind of stuff I gotta think the man is talking crazy.

I mean, what's next? Taking exams?

I'm going to have to cut this letter a little shorter than I intended because the crayon is just about gone. Say "Howdy" to all the family and neighbors for me and tell them not to worry about us Sooners because we've still got our pride, our eligibility and our limited immunity. See you soon.

Your loving son,
Boomer.

Trojans

The Wooden Shoes walked all over the Trojans 62-60 and went to 23-3 on the season.

The Wooden Shoes led 20-8 after one quarter and 30-24 at halftime.

"They jumped on us early, and they never let us get on the ground," Madison coach Al Collins said. "They were real hot in the first half. It seemed like they hit everything they put up. But they were getting off good, easy shots against us."

"They took advantage of everything we did wrong. They were good, and we were just bad."

Madison did have four players in double figures. Andre Mayes led the way with 16 points. Tim Smith had 12 points, Jessie Leonard had 11 and Aaron Jones added 10.

It would have been tough to expect a win Friday, but Saturday the Trojans hosted the Cahokia Comanches, and that was a game the Trojans could expect to win.

The Comanches defeated the Trojans 90-70 in Cahokia on Jan. 6. However, Jones and Mayes were ineligible when that game took place. Jones and Mayes each scored 19 points in the rematch, but the outcome was the same. Cahokia walked out of town with a 66-65 victory.

"We had our usual amount of turnovers, but we played pretty well and led most of the first half," Collins said.

Madison softball meeting March 1

Madison Parks and Recreation will have its softball meeting on March 1 at 6:30 p.m. at the Madison Memorial Center.

Rosters and rules will be issued at the meeting. Anyone with a men's, women's or co-ed team from last year or a new team interested in playing at the Third Street Diamond is urged to attend.

For more information, call Jim Broadway at 451-1440 Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The game was very close all the way. It was 30-24 at halftime, and the Comanches held a 50-49 lead at the end of three quarters.

"We were up about five points in the fourth quarter when we had three four-point turnovers," Collins added. "They scored off the turnovers and we gave them the lead."

Federico Walker had a shot with three seconds left to give his team a win, but his 15-footer bounced off the rim.

Tim Smith was the only Trojan in double figures with 12 points.

NOTES: The Trojans defeated Lebanon 81-70 on Jan. 24 at Madison. Collins doesn't think that will be a confidence booster when the teams meet again in the regional on Wednesday.

"It is a disadvantage that we have already beat them, because they will respect us and be pumped up for the game," Collins said.

The Greyhounds may not have been at full strength last time the two teams played because several players were just coming off a bout with the flu.

This time around, the Trojans may not be at full strength. The Greyhounds may be both battling a flu bug. The winner of the game will face the East St. Louis Assumption-Dump winner in the semifinals at 9 p.m. Thursday.

SISL seeks refs

Referees are wanted for the Southern Illinois Soccer League. Anyone born in 1973 or earlier can apply. A license is not required.

A meeting will be held Feb. 25 at 1 p.m. at Shane Van Fossen Field in Collinsville. For more information, call Mike at 344-1339 (evenings) or Bob at 877-6641 (days).
